FAMOUS CARTOON ANIMALS

FACTS ABOUT BUGS BUNNY

He first appeared as an extra in a Porky Pig cartoon.

The then-unnamed rabbit was created in 1938 for a cartoon in which Porky Pig went hunting, but the actual character wouldn't appear until years later.

His voice was originally designed to mimic Daffy Duck's.

During his inception, Bugs director I. Freling decided the rabbit's voice would be similar to Daffy's, since the duck was already a popular character. The voice actor who played Bugs, Mel Blanc, also provided the voice for Daffy Duck, as well as most other Looney Tunes favorites like Tweety Bird, Speedy Gonzales and Marvin the Martian.

His mannerisms were partially inspired by Clark Gable.

Bugs' nonchalant, carrot-eating manner was inspired by a scene in 'It Happened One Night' when the fast-talking Clark Gable snacks on carrots while leaning on a fence. The character also took inspiration from Groucho Marx.
